THE CASE OF MRS. BRINSMADE.

Superintendent Kennedy's Conduct Investigated.

Conduct of Provost Marshal Baker and Assistant Marshal Bowles, of Washington City.

MRS. BRINSMADE'S TESTIMONY.

The investigation before the Poard of Police Commis sioners into the conduct of Superintendent Kennedy, in connection with the mysterious incarceration for forty lays of Mrs. Brinsmade, was opened yesterday at Police Headquarters. Public interest and public attention had been very properly awakened by the circumstances of the case, one fact which came to light being in itself sufficiently strong to demand a public scrutiny—that for forty days the lady named had been im mured in the Forty-seventh Precinct station house, upon no ostensible charge, and forbidden all communication with her friends. How far Superintendent Kennedy or any other of our officials here were answerable either for the arrest and subsequent close confinement of Mrs. Brissmade was the immediate subject of yesterday's Precisely at eleven o'clock the Board of Police Commissioners met in their room at Police Headquarters. Broome street. All the witnesses were then in atten-dance, Mrs. Brinsmate attended by some lady friendsawaiting the opening of proceedings, in another room. Samuel L. M. Barlow, whose letter in the papers first irew attention to the case, was also present. A little after eleven o'clock Superintendent Kennedy, with his counsel, Judge Dean, entered the room and the ludge bean, and informed him that, in conference with Ir. Barlow, he found that the charge or specification rainst Mr. Keenedy was based on the paragraph in the etter of Mr. Bar'ow commencing:—"An immediate ap-plication was made to Mr. Kennedy for the cause of her rest, and for permission to see her. This was rudely fused by Mr. Kennedy, who threatened to lock up the arplicant if the inquiry was repeated."

Judge Dean-I know nothing about the case beyond what appeared in the public papers. I did not see Mr. come here to-day as his counsel. Mr. Kennedy desires that there shall be a thorough and full examination into

Mr. Bowen-I suppose Mr. Barlow is prepared to assent to this, as he has the case under charge.

The only thing which distinguished her from other ladies a board was a certain amount of kindness to a number of sick and disabled soldiers we were bringing from New relations. I know that she did that to a considerable exent; there were thirty or forty other ladies, and I think hat none of the ladies acted in the way Mrs. Brinsmade but that was the only thing what distinguished her on higheard from others, she lost no opportunity of deing bod on the way, with the exception of the young manifolder. I knew her beat of anybody on board, and I were beard her make any allusion to the go-erament or hardour of the secretary of the government, with the exception of the young manifolder. I knew her beat of anybody on board, and I were beard her make any allusion to the go-erament or hardour of the government, with the exception of the government of the secretary of war. Q. What was your treatment, Mrs. Brinsmade, in the station house? A. I was treated with great respect by all the officers and by the captains; I was treated radely only by Baker and Bowles. Q. Wind the station house? A. I did not expective gain any information if I did.

Commissioner Bowen—Is this the interview referred to the highest control of the station house did you doesn't all the officers and by the captains; I was treated radely only by Baker and Bowles. Q. cell? A. Oh, no; a room on the first floor, oh, they would not put me there. (Laughter).

By Mr. Bprlow.—Q. All this time were you allowed to write letters? A. No, sir; I was allowed no communication with the outside world at all. Q. You had no one to see you? A. No, sir; I asked permission to write and have a letter sent to my friends, but I was refused; I, however, wrote one and pitched it out of the window into the street, and some person kindly picked it up and put it in the post; I had asked to see Mr. Draper; but Bowles said that he was a man of no influence, a man that could do nothing for me, consequently I gave that idea up. (Laughter.) Q. Until the happy success of your letter dropped into the street, you had not communicated with any of your friends for forty days?

A. No, sir.

said that he was a man of no influence, a man that could do nothing for me, consequently I gave that idea un. (Laughter.) Q. Until the happy success of your letter dropped into the street, you had not communicated with any of your friends for forty days? A. No, sir.

By Commissioner Bowen—Q. When did Bowles call upon you hast? A. Five or six days; he expressed surprise that I was still there; he said Kennedy would see me the next day, and that a meeting of the Commissioners would be held, when I would be released.

This closed Mrs. Brinsmade's examination.

The next winness called was Mrs. Brinsmade since she was a child; first learned that she was a prisoner the day previous to my visit to Mr Kennedy; I called upon him and asked for permission to see the lady, if she was confined; inquired also the cause of her commonwent; Mr. Kennedy said she is arrested as a general sip; he said, also, "I have had a watch upon her from the moment she set a foot in the city, my presence has overshadowed her since she arrived; when she was in Brooklyn I was there; and at the Everett House, I was there; when she went to Washington my presence has overshadowed her since she arrived; when she was in Brooklyn I was there; and at the Everett House, I was there; when she went to Washington my presence has overshadowed her since she arrived; when she was in Brooklyn I was there; and when I got her in the right place! I had her arrested;" I asked him who was her accuser, who had her arrested, and what she was accused of? He said "I am, madam: I am her accuser," when I asked to see her, he said I could not see her; I asked him then was her accuser, who had her arrested in the Forty-seventh street station house she was confined; I explained to him the interest I had in her; he said again that she was a goneral too be entrusted with anything of that sort; that she was a young, riddy person and not fitted to be a spy; the said that was the very sort of a person to be a spy; that one like her had been arriving quinime to the robles; he sai everything in connection with the case should be spread upon the record.

Commissioner Bowen said this declaration on the part of counsel was gratuitous. The allegation was, no doubt, founded that the rights of a citizen had been invaded by a police officer. The Board of Police were grateful to Mr. Barlow for bringing the charge before the public, so that, if true, it might receive their serious consideration, and if false to Mr. Kennedy, that it might be shown to be folse. In any point of view the Board felt grateful; for they are determined not to permit the rights of any citizen, however humble, to be invaded by the police authorities. It was important to have the testimony of Mr. Draper in this case, and the case had therefore to be adjourned till Monday, at eleven o'clock.

Counsel agreeing, the Court adjourned till Monday next.

SHOCKING CASE OF ABORTION.

Young Lady Spirited Away for Four Weeks and then Sent Home in a Dying Condition-Arrest of the Alleged Abortionist and His Housekeeper-Coroner's Inquest-Interesting Developments.

Inquest—Interesting Developments.

A shocking case of abduction and abortion, involving the death of a young lady residing at No. 370 Bleecker street, named Clemintina Anderson, come to light yesterday. The particulars of the affair, as developed on the inquest before Coroner Ranney, appear to be as follows:—On the 25th ultimo, Miss Anderson, a young lady of refinement and education, left her father's house without any clue being afforded to her designation. Her designation. any clue being afforded to her destination. Her de-parture was so mysterious that all efforts to find plunged into the deepest grief in consequence. The police were duly notified of the disappearance; but after several days of fruitless search they were compelled to give up the case in despair. No clue, however slight, evening, about eight o'clock, when a carriage, containing two women and a man, drove up in front of Mr. Ander son's house. One of the women, a pale, emaciated creature, staggered into the house, and was recognized by Mr. Anderson as his long lost daughter. The poer creature was in a fainting condition, and so weak that she was unable to converse even with her parent. A physician was sent for to attend to the girl's wants, and in a few mo. ments Dr. Tucker arrived; but before he entered the house the erring girl breathed her last. She had evidently been brought there in a dying condition, and barely had time to gaze upon the face of her loving father before death snatched her away. The woman who accompanied deceased, on being asked for an explanation regarding the affair, stated that she was the housekeeper of br. Browne, No. 82 Eighth arenue, and that deceased had been stopping there for the last two weeks for medical treatment. Upon being questioned further, the woman said that she understood Miss Anderson had been to Newburg, and, being attacked with pleurisy, was brought to Dr. Browne's for treatment. From the history of the case, and the peculiar appearance of deceased, Dr. Tucker concluded that an abortion had been procured, and at once sent for Captain Sebring and Coroner Rauney. housekeeper, who gave her name as Liz Gordon, was detained until the arrival of the police; but the backman managed to effect his escape. Upon the arrival of the Coroner and the police it was determined to make a descent upon Dr. Browne's establishment, for the purpose of arresting the guilty party, as well as securing such evidence as might be found there. The doctor's arrest was effected with case, and in the search of the premises which followed the police were successful beyond their most sanguine hopes. A large number of surgical instruments, many of them of the most villanous character, were found i the dector's studio. A batch of letters and a memoran dum book-the contents of which are more conclusive even than the instruments—were also discovered and seized upon by the officers. Dr. Browne, to, gether with his housekeeper, were lodged gether with his housekeeper, were lodged in the Ninth ward station house over night and locked up in separate cells, so as to be unable to con verse with each other until after their examination by the Coroner. conumer's inquest. Coroner Ranney commenced the investigation of the case at an early hour yesterday morning; but it was not until two o'clock in the afternoon that he was ready to bring the matter before a jury. In the interim a post morrem examination of the body was made by Dr. Thos. C. Finnell, when evident traces of an abortion having been procured were discovered. The symptoms were

C. Finnell, when evident traces of an abortion having been procured were discovered. The symptoms were well marked, and will be presented to the jury at length by the physician himself when the proper moment arrives. The first witness examined was Dr. Browne. He testified as follows:—

Edward M. Browne, of No. 82 Fighth avenue, being duly sworn, deposed as follows:— I am a physician; I graduated at the Fenasylvania College; about two weeks ago deceased came to my bouse; sibe came to my place in the evening; in the morning i examined her and found her in a burning fever; she said she had been sick; but I did not question her closely; I found that a blister had been applied to her abdomen, but could not say whether there was any inflammation or not; the following day I found that as he had a very severe attack of pleurisy; I got her into a mustard bath and applied a blister over the right or left lung. I do not know which; that continued for some days, and then a severe cough set in, which continued up to the last; it was a very severe cough indeed, the phiegin being very extensive; we had to change the cloths she spit in at least a dozen times a day; a day or two before she left the cough subsided, and when she left I considered it a great deal better; the quantity of phiegin she raised was great, but she raised it much easier; I saw her about five minutes before she left the house, and gave her a brandy sing; I gave her the drink at her own request; she did not telline where she was going; I did not advise her te leave, but, on the contrary, I was averse to it; she said she felt a great deal better; when she was leaving; I knew that she was going to Bleecker street, but did not know the number; my housekeeper went with her in a carriage; that was the first time I knew her name; from four to six days before deceased came to my house there was an arrangement made to roceive her; the arrangement was made by a gentleman whose name I do not know; I think he was about thirty or thirty-five years old; had light hair and a moustache; I could not say whether he had whirkers or not; he was about five feet seven inches in height, and was medium size; I had no extended conversation with him on the subject of the lady; he said he wanted me to take charge of the lady; as she was in delicate health; he was to pay me fifty dollars if I cured the lady, and I was to receive nothing if I failed; if I had known the real state of the case when the lady called first I would not have taken her at any price; this man called three or four times to see the lady; he may have called of tener.

Q. When he called did he not tell you that the lady was pregnant, and that he wanted you to produce an abortion? A. I don't think he did; he did not.

Q. Did he not state to yeu what her complaint was? A. He did not; he said there was a complication of diseases—a general failing of health; I took the lady without knowing the gontleman's name, and only had his word for the payment of the $50; I was not told where the lady came from—merely that she was from the country; it is not unusual for me to take patients under similar circumstance; Miss Anderson arrived at my house about eight o'cleck in the evening, and retired without my making any examination; she came with the gentleman who made the arrangement with me; she came in a carriage; she stopped in my office three or four minutes and thon retired to bed; I had some conversation with her, but I don't remember what was said; I stated, in my direct testimony that I did not see her he first evening; I was in error; I did see her, but I did not examine into her case until the next morning; when decased came in she wore a thick voil, so that I could not see her features; I could not tell what was the matter with her by her appoarance; she never gave me any history of her case; I seldom had any conversation with her; the case of instruments now shown me is mine; the instruments are for a legitima tent.

By a Juror—Q. You say that if you had known the real state of the case on the evening of deceased coming to your house you would not have taken her at any price what do you mean? A. I meant that she was so very

Action for Assault and Battery Against the Ex-Surveyor of the Port.

SUPREME COURT CIRCUIT-PART 2. Before Hon. Judge Potter and a Jury.

Nov. 19 .- Stephen D. Dillage vs. Emanuel B. Hart .-This was an action for assault and battery alleged to have been committed by the defendant, who was then Surveyor of the Port of New York, upon the plaintiff, on Surveyor of the Port of New York, upon the plaintiff, on the 18th of July, 1858. The assault was by spitting in the face of plaintiff, and then knocking him down with his stick. The blow cut Mr. Billaye in the head, and rendered him insensible for ten minutes. Damages are laid at $10,000. The assault is justified on the ground of the publication of an alleged gress and malicious fibel on Mr. Hart, issued in pamphlet form by Mr. Dillaye, the particulars of which case are well known. Counsel for the plaintiff, Messrs. Edwin James and Shelton & Brown; for defendant, Messrs. James T Brady, A. Oakey Hall and Benjamin Galbraith.

On the part of the plaintiff it was proved that the defendant blew in his face. Plaintiff replied, "You damned scoundrel, I am unarmed, and you are twice my weight. I will meet you at another time." He was then struck on the head by the defendant, and conveyed into a salcon. The wound was dressed by Dr. Erastus D. Marcy, who expressed the opinion that but for the heat the wound might have been dangerous.

For the defendant, one of the pamphlets alleged to have been written by the plaintiff was read and put in as evidence. In it the defendant is called "a mean souled and skulking Jew," and other similar opithets. In speaking of the machinations of certain influential democrats, the writer says they were combined togother to defent "one of the noblest and most virtuous of Virginia's sons, John B. Floyd, the present Secretary of State"—a statement which caused the Court and jury to induige in a hearty laugh.

The Judge instructed the jury to bring in a sealed verthe 28th of July, 1858. The assault was by spitting in nd October, 1860, and especially the increase of our export trade. The aggregate export of last October was over twenty-six millions of dollars—a figure entirely unprecedented in our commercial records, and fully double the export of October, 1861, and October, 1860. This unusually large export is the more remarkable as we were unable ast October to ship any quantity of the great sta ples cotton and tobacco. The exports of October exceeded the imports by some $3,300,000. This result was achieved by a shipment of $6,707,519 of gold and silver—rather a large amount to be sent abroad at this season, and the heaviest export of the year, with the exception of that of June and July. The imports show a steady increase. The aggregate for October is the heaviest of the year, notwithstanding the predictions of the dry goods dealers that our importations would fall off. There are indications that they may fall off now, as the fluctuations is gold and exchan e render it very unsafe to predicate operations on existing quotations; but even of this there is no certainty. Our people are con-suming as much as ever, notwithstanding the war and the high prices; and so long as the public will buy importers will furnish them with the goods. We are now so near the end of the year that we may speculate with some degree of accuracy upon ommercial results. It will probably be found next January that the importations of foreign goods at the port of New York during the calendar year 1862 exceeded two hundred millions of dollars an enormous amount for a country to buy of the foreign world pending so terrible a war as the one in which we are engaged. It will probably likewise appear that our exports of produce and specie during the like period mounted to not less than two hundred and fifteen to two hundred and twenty millions of dollars figure entirely without parallel in our history. If, as is expected, our armies in the Southwest succeed in liberating several hundred thousand bales of cotton this winter, our exports of produce will be proportionately increased, as much of the staple will come here for shipment. The year's trade would have shown a clear balance of fifteen to twenty millions in our favor" had it not been for the return of American stocks from Europe for sale here.

The following are the trade tables of the port for the ten months which have clapsed of the current calendar year, ending on the 31st of October ult :-

Total, 10 mos. $41,393,773 3,294,762 49,580,668 The payments for the seven-thirties have not yet been completed, and the notes themselves have not yet come to hand. Hence the money market is still in a condition of stringency. Seven per cent is the regular rate for loans on call, on the best securities, except in cases where the lender goes in quest of a borrower. In the course of a day or two rates will decline again. Parties who want legal tender notes to send to Memphis for the purchase of cotton, and to other parts of the West, experience the greatest difficulty in finding them. The banks have none, and the brokers are charging a small premium for those which they can scrape together.

Exchange continues dull and depressed. Bankers ask 1441/4 a 145; but we hear of no sales abou 1441/4 a 1/4. Gold opened this morning at about 13034, sold at 13034, and closed at 13034. People in Wall street are selling gold, on sellers' option, with great vigor.

The stock market was very dull this morning At the morning board the prices of last evening were barely sustained, and at the close of the first board Erie fell off ½, guaranteed ¾, Illinois ¼, Toledo 3/2, and other stocks in proportion. Governments were very firm at yesterday's prices. The exception to the market was Harlem preferred, which advanced two per cent on the grant for the city railroad through Madison avenue. Bonds were steady. There was a pretty large business done in Chicago and Northwesterns, which are improving on the traffic of the line, and the probable increase of business growing out of the Green Bay extension. The assented bonds of this concern are the cheapest bond of their class on the list; the interest on them is considered sure. Between the boards the market was dull. At the second board there was quite a rally; prices advanced 1/4 a 1/4 per cent all round, and closed

At the third board, in Henriques' room, the market was firm, especially on Harlem preferred and Illinois Central. There were sales of gold at 130%, of Pacific at 120%, of Harlem preferred at 51, of guaranteed at 82%, of Illinois at 78%, of Galena at 81%, &c., &c.
